

The following graph shows the past 12 months actual Keepit Dam storage behaviour and the forecast storage level based on varying inflow sequences. The forecast takes into account the current water delivery situation and forecast water delivery of currently account balances. The forecast does not take into account the delivery of any future AWD volumes that may made.

